Course Requirements

Related Field Experiences

The course does not have a formal field experience component, but it is expected that the student utilizes personal educational experience to bring unique perspectives to the discussions.

Teaching Strategies

The course will be taught using lecture, group discussion, presentations, and Canvas assignments.

Communication Plan

The primary means of communication will occur through email. Please use the email address located in the instructor contact information section of this syllabus. I will typically respond to an email within 24 hours of receiving it.

If you need immediate assistance, I encourage you to call or text my personal cell phone at the number located in the instructor contact information section of this syllabus.

Class Participation

Given the constructivist design of the class and the online delivery format, it is imperative that this course is interactive. It is my expectation - and I am certain yours as well - that all students participate fully in all activities and assignments in order to maximize their learning experience.

For this class to be interesting and beneficial, each student is expected to be prepared to lead and/or enter discussions, to ask relevant questions, and to share the results of their study and reflection. This means that each student should be:

- conscious of the class schedule and the requirements for each class (knowing what to be prepared for),
- self-disciplined (spending time to be fully prepared),
- eager to share with your classmates (participating actively by sharing what you have prepared). Participation is an extremely important part of your experience in this class. When you miss participating in a class assignment, not only do you miss information presented, but you miss the interaction of your classmates, which can lead to the loss of key learning experiences.

Major Course Activities / Assignments

Discussion Boards	The student will actively engage in written and/or video dialogue with their colleagues on the course content.
Simulation/Observation Activities	The student will participate in a variety of simulation and observation in leadership activities and report their findings in varied formats.
Projects / Papers	The student will complete projects and formal papers designed to address relationship building, personal leadership philosophy, and an application of leadership theories with connections to the Texas Principal Evaluation & Support System.

The above information is intended to familiarize the student with the types of course activities / assignments. It is not meant as an exhaustive description. Detailed information related to course activities / assignments will be provided in course module.
